SUSPECTS OF ROBBERY ARE HELD BY McDUFFIE

Since last Sunday night Captain of Detectives McDuffie has had two suspects in custody awaiting positive identification by Miss Elizabeth Jones of Mills school faculty, who alleges that she was held up and robbed of a purse containing a sum of money while passing over the upper Manoa valley road.

The men held by the detectives are to have been frequenting the district in which the robbery was committed. Miss Jones declared that near the school premises she was accosted by a white man who demanded money. She attempted to land a blow upon the head of the man with an umbrella. The screams of the woman brought several residents to the scene, while the assailant made a hasty retreat. McDuffie and his men are today working along another line in connection with the case that leads to the belief that the perpetrator may have made his escape by the transport Thomas.

James Speyer donated $1,000 to the Red Cross fund which now totals $47,816.

McLOUGHLIN AND WILLIAMS WILL BE CHALLENGERS

[By Latest Mail.]

NEW YORK.—R. Norris Williams II, of Philadelphia, and Maurice E. McLoughlin is the team that has been named for the American challenging team for the Davis cup next year. All of the officials of the national association in this city were unanimous in declaring that as Williams had "arrived" there was no question as to the Philadelphia and the Californian being a pair of world beaters.

There was some official argument as to how Williams and McLoughlin may be rated this season. It was suggested because of the Californian's wonderful performance in the Davis cup matches in beating Brookes and Wilding that the two young Americans who have defeated the greatest in the world be bracketed as No. 1. Such a thing has never been done before in this country or in England.

The American champion has always stood alone as No. 1. McLoughlin's great playing and his sterling ability is likely to result in this innovation, for it found favor with all of the committee.

AD CLUB MAKES PROPER IMPRESSION ON MAUITES

"Maui no ka oi!"

Maui folks have met the Ad Club—and they liked it. Also, the Ad Club members like Maui, and so do those delegates of other Oahu organizations who attended the third annual Civic Convention at Waialua.

All the details of the three-day visit to the Valley Isle—leaving out the incidents connected with the convention—would fill a large-sized volume. All the Oahu delegates have to say is that they had a "bully good time," and when any Oahu delegation has a "bully good time"—especially the Ad Club—the episode is always something just a little out of the ordinary, and one which will not soon be forgotten.

To the Oahu delegation Maui gave the best that was in her. Referring to the warm hospitality which greeted the visitors from every side, Mayor Joseph J. Fern said: "It reminds me of the Honolulu 20 years ago." The Civic Convention has established a greater bond of friendship between Oahu and Maui; it has strengthened the ties which bind all the islands together in cooperation, unity of thought and feeling and the movement for a greater Hawaii.

To the Honolulu Ad Club is due the credit for the enthusiastic get-together spirit which was established the moment James D. Levenson stepped from the steamer Kilauea onto the wharf at Kahului with the "treasure" in tow. In every "jinks" or serious business meeting the Ad Club led. It cheered and it sang and it cut up, and Maui liked it. Then it displayed some keen business ability, and Maui liked it still better. The Ad Club sang its own songs; it sang Maui's songs; it cheered for Maui and Maui cheered for the Ad Club; and Maui sighed and wished for an organization like the Ad Club.

Sunday was the big day for the delegates, and it will be a long time before the memories of the events of that day will be wiped out. At 9 o'clock the delegates assembled at the Maui hotel, where they climbed into automobiles and journeyed up the beautiful Iao valley as far as the "Needle." The Iao valley without a doubt is Maui's most favored scenic attraction. The deep canyon, winding and curving back into the hills, its sides shimmering with the green of luxuriant vegetation and the river rushing along its bottom, presented a vista of picturesque beauty in the morning sunlight. The great Needle reared its head majestically into the clouds, as if standing guard over the deep ravine which stretched away from its base towards the lowlands.

Returning from Iao valley, the delegates took the train at Waikuku and made the trip through the Haiku district, with its homestead lands, pineapple and cane fields and deep ravines. At Waikuku the train halted and, after much ceremony by the Ad Club and music by the Hawaiian band, Wade Warner, the secretary of the territory, pulled the lever which let the first water into the new Spreckels ditch. The new flume, which takes the place of the old Spreckels one, is built of concrete and laid largely underground. In furnishing water for the Haiku district, it is expected that a large amount of water will be saved from the fact that the new ditch, although much shorter, covers the same distance as the old one and, being constructed of concrete, will prevent waste through seepage.

The delegates continued their journey to the Haiku end of the line, where they boarded wagons and visited the homestead district. Returning to Paia, they sat down to a luau in the sugar storehouse at the Paia mill, the feast having been prepared under the auspices of the Maui Chamber of Commerce.

Memories of that luau, of the enthusiastic display of good fellowship and of the "stunts" carried out by the Ad Club will not soon be forgotten. Long tables were arranged on each side of the building, and preparations had been made for 800 guests. Music was furnished by the Hawaiian band and a Maui musical organization.

Early during the dinner, President W. R. Farrington arose and, after explaining the purpose and work of the Ad Club, called attention to the fact that Sunday had been designated as Peace day by President Woodrow Wilson. Mr. Farrington then asked for Peace day sentiments, and many of these were forthcoming both from delegates and visitors. Led by the Hawaiian band, the visitors stood and sang "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow."

Oahu Marries Maui. There was a feeling of surprise displayed by the guests when, during the dinner, "Will Oahu" and "Mary Maui" walked into the building arm in arm and demanded that they be married. No one knew who Will or Mary was, but had the visitors gone out the back door of the sugar shed after the luau, they would have seen Elmer Schwarzbach and Nell R. Slattery washing grease paint from their faces. But Will and Mary demanded that they be married, and so a minister was secured in the person of Paymaster Lambert. Oahu married Maui, and promised, among other things, to give her her share of the tourist trade and to boost her scenic beauties. With cheering and singing, the luau came to a close well toward the middle of the afternoon.

The luau over, the visitors forsook the train for automobiles, and took the long ride to Makawao and through the Kula district, back along the Kula-Kahului road to Paunoe, through Waikuku and thence to Lahaina, the oldest capital of the Hawaiian islands. The Hawaiian band drew an immense crowd to the vicinity of the Lahaina postoffice, and for an hour Kapellmeister Henri Berger conducted a concert. Manager George Freeland of the Pioneer hotel had an excellent banquet laid out in the Pioneer theater, the Ad Club occupying tables on the stage. There were many informal speeches, and all the delegates joined in singing the Maui and Ad Club songs. L. Weinheimer, in a brief talk, welcomed the visitors to Lahaina.

After most of the viands had disappeared, the stage was cleared and the Ad Club put on a minstrel show, which was greatly enjoyed by all present in spite of the fact that some of the jokes were of a vintage of the day of Joe Miller. The program follows: Opening chorus.....Ad Club songs Solo—"When the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold".....Harry Hillman Monologue.....Paymaster Lambert Song—"Where the River Shannon Flows".....Neil Slattery Song—"I'm Going Crazy".....Harry Decker Song—"Boost, Boost, Boost".....Ad Club Monologue—"Romeo and Juliet".....Claudius H. McBride Song—"There's a Girl in the Heart of Maryland".....Ad Club Quartet Solo.....Raymond C. Brown

The delegates left Lahaina with a strong feeling of aloha for the old Hawaiian city. Hospitality and good fellowship reigned supreme from the time the first automobile arrived until the glimmer of the last tail light disappeared down the road. A hearty vote of thanks was extended Mine Host Freeland, who spared no efforts in providing for the comfort of the visitors. The return to Waikuku was made late Saturday evening.

The festive end of the convention came to a close last evening with a banquet at the Maui hotel. The banquet was a strictly stag affair and was attended by about 400 persons. The big dining room had been prettily decorated for the occasion with palms and ferns, while at one end, in immense letters, was the word "Welcome." During the dinner some friendly "rough house" was indulged in by the opposing factions which occupied the upper and lower ends of the hall. The delegates who were "passengers" came up into the "steerage" and kidnapped President Farrington after a hard fight, but the "steerage" delegates retaliated and soon had the president back again. There were no coats worn at the banquet; if a delegate didn't take his coat off of his own accord, someone came along and took it off for him. Each end tried to outdo the other in making noise. The "steerage" brought the Hawaiian band into the dining room, and the musicians were promptly taken possession of by the "passengers." There was singing and cheering and speech making. After the tables had been cleared, the delegates moved to the lower end of the hall where speeches were made and toasts given.

The delegates boarded the Kilauea at Kahului at about 10:45 o'clock.

NEW DEPARTMENT IS PLANNED FOR Y. M. C. A. YOUTHS

A new department will be organized at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow night. It will be known as the intermediate department and will be for young men between the ages of 18 and 21. For some time the officers felt that there was a gap between the boys' and men's departments and have decided to organize this new section to meet the wants of the younger men.

All the men interested are being invited to a supper in Cooke hall tomorrow night to hear about the plans. Four new clubs are to be organized and these will immediately form an athletic league. They will start their athletic season with basketball, which will be followed by bowling and later indoor baseball and indoor track. The clubs are trying to divide up the better athletes so that there will be strong competition in each of the sports.

In addition to the athletics the clubs will hold a weekly meeting at which time business matters will be discussed to be followed by a Bible study discussion in charge of the leader of the clubs. The clubs are to be led by W. H. Heinrichs, G. E. Jackson, A. E. Larimer and Lloyd R. Killam.

STAINBACK TO GIVE MANDAMUS ANSWER IN THE NEAR FUTURE

Attorney-General Stainback will file in circuit court either this afternoon or tomorrow his answer to the mandamus and quo warranto proceedings instituted by Attorney George A. Davis in which the latter is questioning the validity of City and County Clerk David Kalaokalani's election at the recent primary.

The quo warranto evidently is not take effect until January 1, when brought in an effort to oust Kalaokalani, although the attorney-general says he cannot see how it can have effect until Kalaokalani has attempted to take office under the certificate of election issued by himself to himself. That certificate of election does not take effect until January 15, when his new term begins. For that reason it is deemed likely that the quo warranto complaint would be quashed at once, upon the attorney-general's motion. The mandamus proceedings would call upon Kalaokalani to deliver up his certificate of election in order that it may be cancelled.

AMERICANS SING IN THE WAR ZONE

[By Latest Mail.] LONDON.—The correspondent of the Daily News at Ostend says that two Americans who arrived there Monday from Brussels made the trip partly by foot. They had a rough time of it, but wherever they met Germans the waving of their American passports secured them polite treatment. At Rotterdam they came upon a party of German soldiers in a tavern and the lieutenant in charge of the party invited the Americans to sing a song for them. The Americans sang and the Germans reciprocated by providing them with a good dinner.
